Last Payment Made by Kleinworts on Debentures

Amounted to $2,000,000 and was Not Due Until December 1 — City Received No Less than $9,135,000 his Year From Same Firm.

Mayor Short made the last payment on the Kleinworts debentures this morning. The payment, which was made to the city of Edmonton, amounted to $2,000,000. The debentures were issued by the city of Edmonton in 1912, and the city has received no less than $9,135,000 from the Kleinworts firm this year. The payment was made to the city of Edmonton, and the city has received no less than $9,135,000 from the Kleinworts firm this year. CANADA'S REVENUE LARGELY INCREASED SO FAR THIS YEAR

Statement Shows Increase of Five Millions for First Seven Months.

Ottawa, Nov. 8.—The monthly statement of revenue and expenditure issued yesterday by the department of finance shows a total revenue for the first seven months of the fiscal year of $191,193,314. This is a better month by about $5,000,000 as compared with the corresponding period last year. The increase has been largely in post office and railway revenues, the collection of duties on imports being a small gain. For the month of October alone the revenue stood at $14,725,598, a decrease of about $500,000 as compared with October, 1912. The expenditure on consolidated account for the seven months stood at $172,462,828, or about the same as last year; capital expenditure increasing from $15,954,978 to $19,725,691. This was due largely to the fact that over $12,000,000 have been paid to the C.N.R. and other railways by way of subsidies. The October expenditure stood at $22,510,000, an increase of over $1,000,000.

DISPUTE OVER ESTATE OF LATE CAROLINE FAIR

Charges of Fraudulent Conspiracy Made in Battle Over Estate.

New York, Nov. 8.—Charges of fraudulent conspiracy in the legal battle over the division of the estate, valued at $100,000, of the late Caroline D. Fair, and her late husband, Chas. L. Fair, who were killed in an automobile crash near Paris, are continued in a complaint which Supreme Court Justice Sutherland returned against Thaw. The additional contentions were made by Theodore Lefter and Mabel E. Twiss, nephew and niece of Mrs. Fair, with other of her relatives since the case entered suit to settle the agreement by which the estate was settled. By the settlement it was understood the bulk of the estate went to Mrs. Vanderbilt and Mrs. O'Leary.

DENY STEAMER BROKE HER BACK

Officers Declare That the Port Nelson is Intact and Safe.

Toronto, Nov. 8.—Following a hurried trip to Ottawa, where he held a lengthy consultation with Hon. Frank Chesbrough, minister of railways and canals, Lieut. Col. J. B. Miller, manager of the Port Nelson, tonight made a further denial of the reports that the vessel had broken her back because of being beached on a "hump" at her winter quarters. "We have had word from Mr. McLaughlin, government engineer in charge of the harbor works; Captain Freedy, marine superintendent of the railways department, and from Captain H. R. Saunders, American representative of the salvage association of London, who took the dredge to Hudson Bay," declared Colonel Miller, "and they all declared that the ship is intact and safe. In fact we received a dispatch on Wednesday from Captain Saunders declaring that the boat was in the cume condition as when she left the dock and that she was beached. In order to take further precaution Captain Saunders waited for the October full tide, which is three feet higher than any ordinary tide. This left her high and dry. Not content with this and in order to reduce the chances of destruction to a minimum, the captain ballasted her down to her full weight. She now lies 200 feet above low water line."

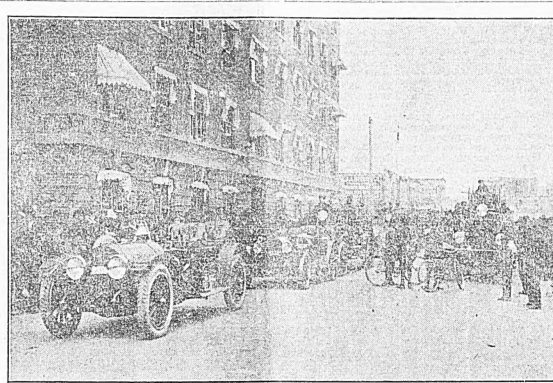

HARRY THAW EXTRADITED

Concord, N.H., Nov. 8.—Governor P. Feltner today honored the requisition of the state of New York for the extradition of Harry K. Thaw. The case was now transferred automatically to the federal courts, where a writ of habeas corpus on behalf of Thaw is pending. The governor based his decision on the indictment returned against Thaw in New York county which charged him with conspiracy to murder in the indictment at Matteawan, New York, where he was committed after his second trial for the killing of Stanford White. Thaw made his sensational flight August 17 and a few days later was arrested near Coaticook, Quebec, Canada.

DIVORCE CASE FROM WEST

Ottawa, Nov. 8.—Mother-in-law divorce case is given notice in C.P.D. court. George G. Smith of Stovenville, will ask justice for a decree of divorce from the bulk of the estate went to Mrs. Vanderbilt and Mrs. O'Leary.

MOTOR OUTFITS OF FIRE DEPARTMENT LINED UP IN FRONT OF CIVIC BUILDING

This picture was taken this morning in front of the new civic building and shows Fire Chief Lauder's motor cars, combination chemical and hose wagons and other pieces of the new outfit recently added to the department. Following a short inspection, the mayor, commissioners and members of the city council took positions on the big fire fighting wagons and were buzzed about Jasper west at a frightful speed just as if they were rushing to a fire. Alderman May, when telling about the trip out west later on, said that he was sure the boiler truck on which he was riding was going at a speed of 47 miles an hour. After the demonstration Mayor Short stated that he was well pleased with the new outfit of the fire department, the department giving a fine demonstration of what they are ready to do in future for the safety of the public. For some time the street was blocked at the Civic building this morning while the apparatus was lined up awaiting the start of the performance. At least a dozen cameras were working overtime and many snappers were taking of the outfit now in service in the Edmonton Fire Department.

NEW YORK WILL IMPORT EGGS TO RELIEVE FAMINE

Failure of Hens to Lay and Shortage in Cold Storage Creates Famine.

New York, Nov. 8.—Eggs are so scarce in New York that dealers have put the retail price up to 75 cents per dozen for quality, and prospects are they will rise to a dollar. The present wholesale price is 62 cents a dozen, though certain brands of western eggs may be obtained for 43 cents a dozen. Failure of hens to lay this year and a shortage in the cold storage supply are blamed as reasons for the scarcity. With the tariff of six imported eggs, many wholesale dealers are planning to bring eggs from abroad to relieve the situation.

EXCITING RUMOR ARISES AT JAW

Lock on Main Switch Broken — No Connection, However, With Recent Accident.

Moore Bay, Sask., Nov. 8.—A rather sensational rumor was current on the streets this morning but on investigation the C.P.D. officials state there is no connection with accident to No. 4 last Monday. It appears that last night before midnight, the lock on the main line switch which three No. 4, was broken. Terminal Superintendent Balliett states that he does not make any connection with the previous accident and believes that the portion of the lock broken was due to a natural defect. The switch locks are spring locks and it is one of the small teeth which the spring operates which was broken. The switch itself was found to be in perfect order and had not been tampered with. The condition of the lock was discovered by a rear end brakeman who could not make the lock catch when he closed the switch after his train. The head-end brakeman believes that the key was necessary to open switch but it is not absolutely certain.

When the incident was reported it caused no small sensation in C.P.D. circles. This switch is not guarded by a switch tender, and is one of the three main switches in the terminal.

RUMORS OF WAR WITH MEXICO UNCONFIRMED

No Decision Reached as to Embargo on Arms—Representative Lind Confers With British Minister, and Belief Exists that Views Differ Widely.

Nearing an End. Mexico, City, Nov. 8.—Unwilling to admit another failure on the part of Washington to bring about the situation of President Huerta, John Lind, President Wilson's personal representative, nevertheless failed today to manifest any enthusiasm over the prospect of Huerta giving up office. From his meeting and his conversation he indicated that he believes things are nearing an end. There was nothing at the American embassy today to indicate that a more favorable turn in the events is expected, and there is reason to believe an ultimatum in its fall sense soon will be handed Huerta. The time limit being brief. It is expected that this new document will be so written as to bring the end to the relations between the two countries before November 22, the date fixed for the opening of the new congress unless Huerta sees fit to agree to the terms of the Washington communication. Lind's Stay Short. Mr. Lind today drew no Mexican government official and probably will not stay any longer in the capital. For some time the street was blocked at the Civic building this morning while the apparatus was lined up awaiting the start of the performance. At least a dozen cameras were working overtime and many snappers were taking of the outfit now in service in the Edmonton Fire Department.

Refusal Makes No Impression. Washington, Nov. 8.—Attitude of the Washington government. Press despatches today announcing to some extent Huerta's purpose of rejecting the American demands made by the American government officials. They had received no official communication to that effect and would not "go" for a "go" with the amount specified. In this usually the merchants stamped the slip with the ordinary rubber stamp bearing the firm's name. In numerous instances these slips passed as currency not only at the banks but also in the stores. As yet the public has placed no premium on paper money. Washington, Nov. 8.—What shall the United States do in the event that Provisional President Huerta refuses to resign? This question was discussed at length today in the cabinet meeting but no decision was announced. Formal reply to the latest American representations had not been received up to date today, and until a definite answer comes it is not expected there will be a determination of the policy to be pursued.

The discussion at the cabinet meeting turned, however, to various alternatives. Nothing concrete developed, it was said nor any tangible conclusions and members went away with fixed ideas of the determination of President Wilson that the American government should unreservedly insist on the elimination of Huerta from the situation as the first step toward peace in the southern republic. No Decision as to Embargo. Lifting the embargo on arms so that troops with General Carranza might be used in the event of a final break in the negotiations is under consideration. There is no quarrel, and further that it is the contention of the administration that there is no government to declare war on Mexico has no congress just now in session. The preliminary to any declaration of war must be a message from President Wilson to congress. Pending such a message, secret-leave rumors may be discounted by Washington.

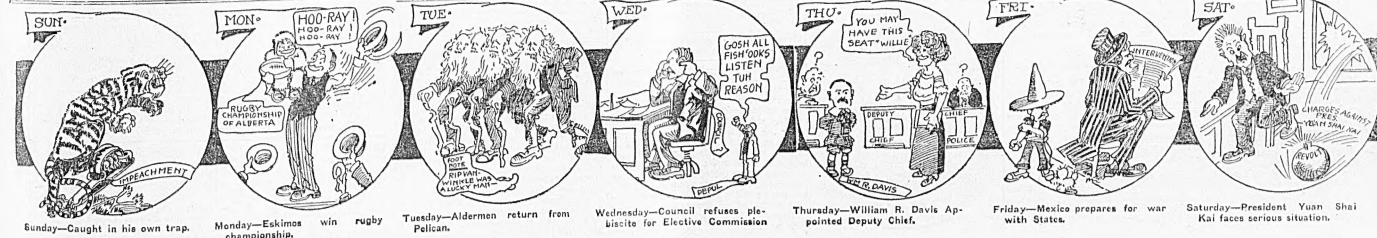

Reports Baseless. New York, N.Y., Nov. 8.—A series of baseless reports have been published at various times during the past 24 hours regarding the strained situation between the United States and Mexico, one even saying war had been declared by Washington. The Associated Press dispensed of these rumors by stating that it is the United States that must declare war and that this is impossible now, as there is no quarrel, and further that it is the contention of the administration that there is no government to declare war on Mexico has no congress just now in session. The preliminary to any declaration of war must be a message from President Wilson to congress. Pending such a message, secret-leave rumors may be discounted by Washington.

MOWAT IS NAMED FOR COMPTROLLER

Mayor Will Recommend at Next Council Meeting That He Be Appointed.

According to the plans of Mayor Short, the city council will be asked at the next regular meeting to appoint A. N. Mowat, at present city auditor, to the position of comptroller. The salary named in the recommendation of the mayor, is at the rate of $4,000 for the balance of the present year, and $5,000 for next year. He also recommends that McIntosh & Hyde, the firm of auditors from Montreal, now making an independent audit of the city's books, be given the contract of auditing the books of the city in future for the consideration of $7,000 annually. Still another recommendation which the mayor asks the council to approve is the permanent appointment of Capt. Engineer Howden so that he will be amenable to the council and have under his control an audit of work in all departments just as the comptroller has charge of finances. These proposals were on the desks of the aldermen at the last meeting, but were not considered.

CARMICHAEL-BENNETT
"Sunshine," Lamont, the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Bennett, was the scene of a pretty wedding at noon on Wednesday, November 5, when Edith Florence, their eldest daughter, became the wife of Mr. Ralph Carmichael, of Edmonton, South, Rev. W. G. Shaw officiating.

The bride wore her traveling suit of tailored serge with lovely lace blouse and hat of sage blue plush with Tascan mount. The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome cameo brooch. The young couple were unattended.

After a sumptuous wedding breakfast the bridal party, amid showers of rice, confetti and good wishes, left for Edmonton, going to Edmonton South, where they have taken a suite in the Douglas block.

Mrs. Thomas Bellamy "Inglehurst," has issued cards for an "At Home" on Thursday afternoon, November 13, to introduce her daughter, Miss Anne Bellamy.

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Joslin are moving into their new home this week, corner of 164th street and 56th avenue.

Mrs. H. Macdonald, 57, Cameron street, will receive on Tuesday, November 11.

Several little dinners were given last night before the Edmonton assembly. At the Empire were Mr. and Mrs. P. Hamilton, Miss Forsyth, Mr. Bow, At another table Madame Lalonde, Baron von Dembrowski, Mr. and Mrs. Thawley, Mr. and Mrs. Fitzgerald and Mr. J. Whaley were dining together.

Mr. McMahon gave a smart dinner at the Coronet, the party going on to the assembly later. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Pardee, Mr. and Mrs. James Smith, Mrs. McIntyre, Miss Potter, Miss Nora Potter, Mr. David Robinson and Mr. Morse. All these parties went on to the assembly later.

Mrs. Edgar Barry entertained at bridge in honor of her guest, Miss Kilham, of Winnipeg, on Thursday evening. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Howard Douglas, Miss and Madame J. Carbone, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Wallace, Mr. Bruce McLeod, and Mr. Dickins.

How Many Women
Keep Young

"A woman may be old at 18 and young at 80," says Mrs. Margaret Holmes Bates, prominent Chicago clubwoman. "Years don't matter. Didn't Nino de'Elincos have a proposal at 80?"

The youth of our women is more lasting than it was a generation ago because we are becoming acquainted with simple physiological laws. When the first signs appear—wrinkles, bumpy cheeks, neck and chin—we realize that the cause is in loosening of the skin and softening of the tissue underneath. We know the cause must be removed. Instead of laying on powders to set the drug store for no cause of sallow skin and half pink of which hazy, mix them and bathe face with milk and hands in the solution. We know this tightens the skin, tightens the tissue, induces a healthy circulation. We treat causes rather than effects. We use reason—and stay young.

THE EVER-USEFUL ONE-PIECE GOWN.

DESIGN BY MAY MANTON.
778 Semi-Princess Gown, 34 to 42 bust.

THERE is no more satisfactory model than the one-piece semi-princess gown. It is usually well suited to the street and to the house and it can be made from almost any material.

The one shown here is extremely simple, consisting of a blouse made with front closing and one-piece sleeves and a skirt cut in five goes which is closed on a line with the blouse.

The neck is finished with a fancy collar and the sleeves can be extended to the wrists in three-quarter length. The skirt is made in a separate and can be used or omitted as liked. The material should be of the spring varieties and is trimmed with broad, Serge, white and black, and all other materials are equally well suited to the making and, for the later wear, line and shape with any appropriate trimming will be excellent.

Changes in much liked for gowns of this kind and can be used for the model with success.

The skirt is made with a trimming of brocade or black and can be hand-sewn. The over-lapping front edge of the blouse is a smart feature but, if a straight edge is liked better, the point can be cut off.

For the medium size the gown requires 10 yards of material, 27, 6 inches wide. For 14, 44, 48, 52, 56, 60, 64, 68, 72, 76, 80, 84, 88, 92, 96, 100, 104, 108, 112, 116, 120, 124, 128, 132, 136, 140, 144, 148, 152, 156, 160, 164, 168, 172, 176, 180, 184, 188, 192, 196, 200, 204, DAINTY BLOUSES AND GOWNS FOR AUTUMN WEAR

By MAY MANTON

EVERY woman knows how necessary it is to have fresh and attractive gowns and blouses with which to tide over the between-season time. September is really a summer month, yet summer clothing is passed. It is a little early for fall costumes and fall styles are hardly well established. In the illustrations are to be found the very latest models that include new features and which can be made up quickly and readily from the light weight fabrics that are fashionable at all seasons. Blouses are first need at all times. No woman can exist without the tailored costume, and the dressy tailored costume makes a necessity for dainty blouses. The four that are illustrated are as pretty and dainty as can be. They can be made of cotton voile or marquisette, of silk crepe de chine or tulle silk, and they can be made of chiffon or crepe de chine to match the suit. The hand embroidery always gives a sense of distinction to any garment. The designs that are illustrated are by no means elaborate, but women who are in haste and cannot take the time for embroidery will find the blouses pretty without. The yoke blouse seems to create the greatest demand, and even that can be made charming by using all-over material for the yoke while plain material is used for the main portion. Shoulder lace with net would be charming, combined in any way, and net can indeed be used for any one of the models, for net will continue as popular throughout the autumn as it has been during the summer months.

closing on exactly the same line, so giving the continuous line that is so necessary to fashionable effect and so generally becoming. The bodies in this model is made with round collar and lace jabot. One can think of this gown made of French serge for hard usage and of charming satin for afternoon, with equal effect. It is not often that one model can be made applicable for such extremely distinct uses. The little drapery is extremely charming and the buttons that hold it in place serve the double purpose of use and trimming.

Shirt waists may be superseded now and then by more dainty, fancy garments, but they never fall into disuse and they are always in demand. In the third group are shown three of the best models the season has to offer, and with them a most attractive skirt. The waist with the full yoke and sleeves that show the drooping shoulder line, accomplished after an individual and novel method. It is prettily full at the front and is made with a yoke at this back. The tucked waist gives the long, straight lines that are especially liked by women of larger figure, while, at the same time, it can be worn by the slenderest with perfect success. There is a great tendency toward shirt waists finished with soft, roll-over cuffs, and for silk crepe de chine and materials of the kind, they are unquestionably better than the stiff ones, but one of the advantages of this model is that either can be used. In the illustrations made of madras, cotton voile, or any similar waist material. Voile, with its many variations, could be copied in just this combination. If preferred, the sleeves can be cut off in three-quarters length and finished with roll-over cuffs.

MAY MANTON'S FASHION NOTES.

With the approach of Autumn women are apt to be interested in developments in the world of dress. We have learned, too, that it is greater wisdom to buy a few costumes and to replenish frequently than to lay in too large a stock at the beginning of the season and there seems no time at which there is not some demand for new and fashionable things. Here in New York, we have many strangers with us and new costumes and interesting developments must be offered for their benefit. From all that can be seen and all that can be gathered, it is evident that there will be a great deal of plaid and a generous number of checks worn this season. Plaids, to be sure, always appear with the coming of the autumn but they are unusually beautiful and are being used in uncommonly attractive ways, so that they are likely to be permanent for some months at least. Checked materials show various combinations of green and tan make an apparent favorite and some of the checked broadcloths are marvelously beautiful. There is fairly a riot of exquisite brocade and brocaded fabrics and opening displays seem to indicate plain chiffon. The skirt of the flowered material is draped at the front. The bodice combines the two fabrics but terminates with a cutaway peplum of the flowered crepe to the edge of which is attached a wide plaiting of the chiffon that extends almost to the knees. Whatever else is uncertain, it appears to be established that we shall be narrow at the feet and again at the waist but wide between. There is even an attempt made to introduce the peplum or short tunic with stiffened lower edge but it seems hardly probable that this will have extended vogue.

satins with the bodice of real Chinese yellow with the blue used for the collar and girle, and apparently, we shall see many developments of that idea but the separate bodices as such, remains part of the tailored costume. These costumes of the dressier sort are complete even while the vivid contrasts exist. At this writing, there is little likelihood of the return of the separate waist of elaborate make that was known a decade ago. The three-piece idea is the prevailing one for handsome street suits and, for afternoon occasions, gowns will be worn beneath appropriate coats; that is to say, when really cold weather has arrived. For between seasons and the early autumn, street gowns are likely to be in demand. A smart costume shown by a specialty house is of dark blue serge skirt is quite plain save that it includes a narrow panel with plaits at the left of the front. The bodice is made with extremely short, slightly full peplum that does not meet at the front. At the neck it is cut out to reveal a chemise of fine batiste finished with a soft, rolling collar while the edge of the bodice itself is completed by a narrow collar of plaid which repeats in the rolled-over cuffs that complete the three-quarter sleeves. At the waist line is a black patent leather belt of moderate width and belts and girles seem inevitable features of the latest styles. Chemises, too, are almost ubiquitous and often the bodice itself is cut to suggest the waistcoat idea. Mahogany color is so much worn throughout the autumn. A handsome gown is made of charmeuse in that color with the skirt lapped. The bodice is loose under the arms, as are most of the new ones, with sleeves that terminate above the elbows. It is cut to form a V at the back and at the front and is finished with a fichu that is held at the front by a single large chiffon rose. The silk is of soft blue ribbon tied in long loops at the back. A second costume is made of Lierre lace. The flounces on the skirt are arranged one above the other but do not overlap and, at the upper edge of each of the two lower ones is arranged a band of pink ribbon caught at top and bottom to form a scanty puffing while at the left of the front, this ribbon forms soft bows.

THE craze for dancing already mentioned means greater elaboration in the afternoon costumes than heretofore has been the case. A charming costume worn by a debutante, is of shadow lace in extremely simple pattern while, at the top of the lowest flounce, sprays of pale pink morning glories set at short distances apart are arranged.

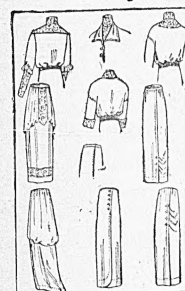

Tunics of lace are among the later developments, too, and some wonderfully beautiful costumes are made with short simple tunics in Greek style. A notable gown consists of soft, creamy charmeuse satin gracefully draped with over it, a tunic of lace flouncing which terminates several inches above the knees and is simply straight and moderately full. The bodice is simplicity itself, each side being cut from flouncing the edge of which forms the sleeve finish while the inner edges meet at the front and back and there is a deep, closely fitting girle which extends quite to the bust line and which is made of rich white and gold brocade, the glinting, shimmering threads of which give marvellously beautiful effects.

FOR afternoon wear, every variation of the peplum is promised. The straight plaited peplum is conspicuous. It is becoming to slender figures and, it is easy to adjust to any blouse, it is easy to obtain but there are many modifications of that idea and many plain peplums to be seen, closely fitting girle which extends quite to the bust line and which is made of rich white and gold brocade, the glinting, shimmering threads of which give marvellously beautiful effects.

draped and much drawn up at the front with, over it, a short full tunic that is shorter at the front, longer at the sides and back while the bodice is in simple kimono style with long clasping sleeves and deep V-shaped opening while within the opening is to be seen a vest of white pique and above it a tiny little chemise of shadow net. The edges of the tunic and the edges of the blouse are finished with bands of black velvet and there is a crushed girle of that same material.

ONE-PIECE gowns have taken a prominent place. Women have learned their comfort and are likely to demand them indefinitely. For the between-seasons time they are charming made of crepe, of muslin, of silk, of sponge, and of various materials of a similar sort. The three pictured give very new and striking models and also are replete with suggestion. Two of them are excellent for combinations of materials, and it so often happens that one likes to make over the summer gown into the between-seasons gown that they are likely to prove of especial value. The gown at the extreme left shows a skirt drapery that is uncommonly becoming. It is arranged over a two-piece foundation, and this foundation can be cut with a slight train if preferred. If more of the panier effect is liked, the lower edge of the drapery can be turned under and caught to the skirt. The bodice with its overlapped, spread edges is distinctly smart. The combination shown here is plain and broad crepe, with pretty, soft lace fills in the sleeves. The second gown is somewhat similar, in style adapted to general wear. The skirt is of the four-piece kind with overlapped edges at front and back, and the wedge-shaped panel that allows of the cut-away effect. The bodice includes the favorite sleeves oiled to it at the drooping shoulder line, and is made with the open neck that is so much liked. As a matter of course, any one to whom the rolling collar is not becoming can adjust a chemise underneath, and these removable chemises are really bonas. The third gown combines a draped skirt that is cut in two two pieces, with the blouse that extremely daring contrasts of color will continue to be used. Trouville and various other fashionable resorts of Europe are apt to give evidence during August of tendencies that will be repeated later in general fashions. The latest reports seem to indicate a tendency toward the widening of skirts, for evening and afternoon occasions at least, that will be good news to many readers.

DANCING has been the pleasure of pleasures this season and unquestionably some of the exhibitions that light skirts have made are bringing about a revolt. It is impossible for a woman to dance with any semblance of grace in such skirts as have been worn. Designers are taking heed of that fact and we are likely to see prettier, more graceful models during the next few months. Indeed, what is known as the three tiered, or flounced, skirt is a favorite of the moment and, while the flounces are by no means full, they do mean charm and grace. Lace flouncing is the material preferred to all others for their making and, since the kimono bodice is the favorite one, fashionable gowns take simple lines and are a mass of dainty fluniness that is especially attractive with the thermometer registering well up in the eighties.

A most charming example, seen at a near-by resort, is made from the dainty shadow lace that seems so especially well adapted to summer gowns. The three flounces are of equal width but the lowest flounce, arranged straight around the foundation of charmeuse, is finished slightly at the left of the front where the flouncing is drawn up to form curved edges which are over-

THANKSGIVING DAY OFFENSE.

Well, here's Thanksgiving Day at last, and it was some long time coming. The days pass like a dream when you are at home, and you are looking for a real holiday from school. If they want us to feel that they should give us a Thanksgiving Day once a week.

They do not let the once-a-week Thanksgiving Day come on other Saturday or Sunday. You can't really get a Thanksgiving Day unless it's a Sunday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday or Friday.

They say that this Thanksgiving Day business was started by the Quakers down in some of the Eastern States. They were so thankful that they had not been scolded by the Indians that they made a day of rejoicing out of it.

It is a President of the United States thought it was such a good name for everybody to get into that he made it a holiday all over the States.

This is one of the good things the Canadian nation has copied from the United States nation. They get the good ideas from Canada, too, sometimes.

HOWEVER, to get back to the subject, we ought to thank the poor poor old Quakers.

HOW ABOUT A BONE'S DAY?

Well, we see they have decided to have a Father's Day, too, as well as a Mother's Day. That's fine. It's also here a Son's Day, and start fighting it by cleaning out the cellars, basements, or some other place where you can find bones. It is supposed to be found of.

THE LITTLE MOTHERS

And the Baby Dollies

Slissy and Nell were playing at mothers. They had some very nice dolls—baby dollies in long clothes, little girl-dollies and little boy-dollies, dollies that could stand alone, and dollies that only rode in carriages, dollies with golden hair and blue eyes, and dollies whose eyes and hair were very dark.

They had baths, and towels, and brushes, and combs, and everything they needed to keep their dollies nice. One dolly, whose name was Beauty, had arrived on Christmas Day, with a trunk full of lovely clothes. Uncle Frank sent it to Nell; he sent Slissy a splendid toy motor-car, which was moved by clock-work.

You will think Slissy and Nell were very lucky little girls, and I think so too. They were very happy little girls also, and they loved to play at being big, most little people do. It is so nice to pretend one is quite grown up, and able to do as grown-up people do.

Slissy was mother, and Nell was Aunt Lucy come with her children on a visit to mother. Both the nurses were away for a holiday; so the mothers had to take the babies on themselves.

"I shall take Hal and Flora with me," said Slissy. "I suppose you must take the baby."

"Oh, yes; I couldn't possibly leave her at home, though she is really getting too heavy for me to carry. Nurse says she must soon go in the baby-carriage, and I really think when she is put into shorter clothes I shall let her. Wouldn't you, dear?"

"Indeed, I should," replied Slissy; "but I expect you will be sorry when that time comes, won't you? I love babies best when they are in long clothes; don't you?"

The park in which they walked was only the back garden, but Slissy and Nell pretended it was a huge place. Hal and Flora were supposed to be able to walk, but they were only very little; so their mother carried them when they were tired.

"Well, walked with her baby, holding a big umbrella over it. The baby was very good indeed; but Flora was rather naughty; she kept falling down and making her clothes dirty.

When her mother told her to be careful she said, "Really, mother, I can't help falling!"

Hal soon grew sleepy; so the mothers sat down, while Hal had a nap under the clearest tree.

A WISE DOG

HARRY had gone to the country to make a visit. He was sitting on the porch, talking with Farmer Hughes, when the farmer said: "Isn't it about time you brought up those cows?" Harry was used to being called upon to help everybody at home; but as this was his first visit to the farm-house he felt a little surprised at being told to bring up the cows. However, he started to get, but the farmer kept on talking so busily to him that he could not get away without being impudently. He sat down to wait till the end of the farmer's story. Pretty soon Harry saw the cows coming up, and a very shepherd dog driving them.

"Oh," said he, "I understand now. You told the dog to go for the cows. I thought you meant me."

Farmer Hughes laughed. "You must have thought we were in a hurry to get our visitors at work. Nero knew when I meant. He was in the kitchen, and went out the back door."

"Is his name Nero?"

"Yes, his name is Nero. It seems a chance to call a nice, innocent dog by that name."

Harry had been reading history, and had learned about a wicked emperor named Nero, who used to burn Christians to light his garden.

"Yes," said the farmer; "but he doesn't care. The dog is so intelligent and good that it makes us quite like the name of Nero. He understands everything. Nero, bring up that lamb."

Nero walked quickly away, and soon came back driving a lamb before him.

"Now, bring the sheep," and he brought them. In a little while the sheep started back to the fields. "You would better hold those sheep, Nero," said the farmer. And Nero went out and placed himself in the gate, and kept the sheep in the yard.

"Do you believe a dog can tell one color from another?" asked the farmer.

"Oh, no," replied Harry.

"Nero can. I have two red and two spotted oxen. And he will bring the one or the other, as I tell him. Nero, bring up the red oxen."

Away went Nero, and soon came back driving a red ox and a spotted ox before him.

"Ha, ha!" laughed Harry. "I thought he couldn't tell colors. Nero," said the farmer, sternly, "what did you bring that spotted ox for? Tell me the red ones. Nero, take that spotted one back and bring the other red one."

The dog made a dash towards the spotted ox back to the field, at a gallop, and quickly came back with the other red one.

HERE WILLIE WATCH ME BUST THAT BALLOON!

THE BALLOON. Tommy thought he saw a balloon over the fence in the circus grounds, and he wanted to see it. He started to run, but he was so excited that he fell over the fence and exploded when he reached the other side.

A PRETTY DRESS

This dress, as shown on the figure illustrated, is for a girl 10 years old. It requires 2 1/2 yards of flannel 18 1/2 inches wide for the skirt, with 5 yards of flannel 12 1/2 inches wide for the sleeves, 1 1/2 yd. of edging 5 1/2 inches wide for the collar, 1 1/2 yd. of material 20 inches wide for the body, and 1/2 yd. of edging for the front edge of the skirt.

HAROLD'S MOTOR RUN

In the Nursery

HAROLD, cried Grace, running into the breakfast-room, "mother says the weather is much too bad for us to go to school today. See how thickly the snow lies on the ground. Let us go to the nursery and play with Dolly and Ted."

"Come along, then," replied Harold, "we'll have a jolly time."

Dolly was very pleased to see them. "Oh, I am glad it is snowing," she said, on hearing the news, and even Ted kicked and crowed as if he understood all about it.

"Now, Dolly, get your Panchie, and he shall race his bicycle against my motor," said Harold, who loved racing.

"Yes, and we'll put all the dollies in, won't we?" said Dolly.

So the motor-car was brought out of its snug corner in the nursery cupboard, and Ted's furry lion that could squeak but wasn't fierce enough to rear, and Grace's little man that turned heads over head as the wheels went round, and Dolly's Panchie, who was always ready for a race, for he never got off his bicycle; and when as many dollies as it would hold had been squeezed into the motor, Harold said it was time for the race to begin.

Ted cried "Off!" and held up his little finger, but Panchie didn't start a man and motor merely to see what his wife will do about it.

The doctor was daddy, who had gone to town, and would not be home till the evening; so Panchie was left with great care in the wooden box which Dolly called his bed.

"Never mind," said Grace; "let us run the motor from Glasgow to London, and charge three-pence for the journey."

"Good!" said Harold, "so we will!"

The dolls were taken out, all but Sammie, who sat on the front seat, with his hands on the wheel.

"This way for the London car!" cried Harold. And the passengers were shown to their seats by Grace and Dolly. Harold managed the Glasgow end, and Grace the London end; while Dolly ran all the way there and back beside the car, and Ted sat in his high chair and screamed with delight.

THE WIDOW'S WAY.

OCCASIONALLY a widow finds with her husband a man merely to see what his wife will do about it.

What strange houses they can build! They make a sort of cabin of branches of trees and mud. The mud answers nicely for mortar.

They have large, strong teeth. When they are cutting the branches for use they gnaw them off with their teeth. They make the sticks just as nearly the same length as they can. They dig up the mud with their paws, for they are great diggers. When they are ready to build their cabin they use their flat tails just as moans use a trowel. With it they spat and smooth the coat of mud as they put it on.

The beaver's tail is very short, and well adapted to this purpose. As the wall of the cabin rises higher it is hard for the builder to reach the top. What do you think he does? Why, he props himself up on it and goes on with his work.

These little creatures lead an idle sort of life during most of the summer months, and keep by themselves; but the last of August they form tiny companies and begin to cut down their timber.

The beavers always select a place for building close to a stream of water. To get to the entrance they must go down under the water. In order to keep the water over the doors just high enough they make a perfect dam. This dam is also built of branches and mud. For four the branches might move and get out of place they fix stones upon them, sometimes of large size, to keep them down.

Do you see how they can understand all that? If they did not have a dam the door of the cabin might be closed up with ice if the water got low in the stream in winter.

In this cabin there are two little rooms. They are shaped like an oven. The beavers live in the upper one, and in the lower they store away their food. They eat the roots and branches of different vegetables in the winter. They often lay up food in very large quantities.

This wonderful little animal is about three feet long. His tail is eleven inches long. He uses it as a rudder in swimming, as well as a trowel. This rudder, with his web feet, enables him to swim much faster than he can walk.

So you see that God gives to every creature certain tools to do his own work.

It's Just Weeks Till Christmas

INWARDLY. EVERY girl screams on getting kissed by a man—but she usually does it inwardly.

WHAT NURSERY RHYME PICTURE IS THIS?

BENJAMIN BEAVER

WHAT queer little things beavers are! What strange houses they can build! They make a sort of cabin of branches of trees and mud. The mud answers nicely for mortar. They have large, strong teeth. When they are cutting the branches for use they gnaw them off with their teeth. They make the sticks just as nearly the same length as they can. They dig up the mud with their paws, for they are great diggers. When they are ready to build their cabin they use their flat tails just as moans use a trowel. With it they spat and smooth the coat of mud as they put it on.

JOSIE WANTED A BIG KITE

She Was More Like a Boy Than a Girl, and Liked Boys' Toys.

JOSIE was not much younger than her brother. She had never played with anyone but Harry and Artie James; so she was as fond of boys' games as they were; indeed, she was much cleverer than the boys at some of them.

They did not get home till after the children had gone to bed; but, as mamma had promised that he should go and kiss them, he crept upstairs on tiptoe for fear of waking them, should they happen to be asleep. He need not have been so careful, however, for they were wide awake, and, as soon as he got inside the room Josie cried, "Have you brought me a kite, papa?"

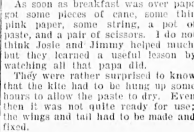

"No, darling; did you want one? Of course, I did! I have known you would! I am very sorry," papa answered. Then, seeing how dreadfully disappointed Josie seemed to be, he added, "Look here, I have a grand idea! I shall be at home all day tomorrow; so I will make you one myself, and you and Jimmy shall help, will that do?"

"Oh, yes, thank you!" cried Josie, her face all smiles and

As soon as breakfast was over papa got some pieces of cane, some thin pink paper, some string, a lot of paste, and a pair of scissors. I do not think Josie and Jimmy helped much, but they learned a useful lesson by watching all that papa did.

They were rather surprised to know that the kite had to be hung up some hours to allow the paste to dry. Even then it was not quite ready for use; the wings and tail had to be made and fixed.
